

FEATURED STORY

BY DAVE FRANCO

The Give to Give Cycle

Derek finds everything he used to think about money no longer applies

When Derek came to know Christ in his early 30s at the very first Rock service he attended, it hit him hard. He felt more than willing to give everything to Jesus, the savior of his soul. And things were going along smoothly until he heard about a little thing called tithing.

“I have to give how much to who when?” he complained.

Money had been a struggle for him his entire adult life and in the process he had compiled a crushing amount of debt. With a move to San Diego from the Southern United States, he found that his money bought him even less than it did before. That is why the idea of giving up 10% every two weeks hit him like a cold glass of water right in the face. It was nothing short of ridiculous—an outlandish request.

In time, he began to make some peace with the idea and found himself feeling ready to give it a go. “If that is what God wants, then there must be...”
