THREE TERRIBLE QUESTIONS

Kids at a concert reveal the battle our youth fight every day

“So let me ask you a question. How many of you here tonight are thinking about killing yourself?” the lead singer asked a sea of young people from the stage. The place went cold and silent. So did I.

I was working this Christian event that culminated in a concert given by the singer and his band and had walked into the 4000-seat arena toward the end of his testimony where he described himself as a poor, overweight, and unwanted kid. He took his angst out onto the streets where he wreaked havoc on his community, stealing, fighting, and taking and dealing drugs. It sent him into a hopelessness that drove him to what seemed to be his only option. Suicide.

But Jesus rewrote his story. As I looked at the crowd, I was shocked to see hundreds of hands—maybe 300—were raised in answer to his question. From my position...

Rock Youth exists to help middle-high school students encounter God and grow within community. They will discover how to impact their church, schools and the world with their unique gifts and talents. TO LEARN MORE, VISIT SDROCK.COM/YOUTH
