

FEATURED STORY

BY ANDREA MORIARTY

A PROMISE FROM JEREMIAH

Mother of boy with autism claims God's promises for her son.

We found out Reid had autism when he was about three years old. So began the now familiar diagnosis-to-acceptance process that impacts more than 1 in 40 families in the United States. While it was devastating at the time, we reached a place of accepting that he is exactly the way God made him.

God did not need to heal, cure, or fix Reid in order for him to be a blessing or for him to have a life of purpose. After wrestling with God, I realized that being mad at Him was not a good strategy. After all, He had created Reid, and He knew Reid better than anyone. I would need His help.

Though I was crushed, I stayed in the Word and claimed the promises of Scripture even when I did not see evidence. If Jeremiah 29:11 is true, "For I know the plans I have for you, declares the Lord, plans for welfare and not for evil, to give you a future and a hope," then it would prove out in Reid's life as well as my daughter's and mine. Reid's significant behavioral, language, and social needs could not negate God's Word for him...
